- Magic Number : just leave this as is

The settings as described we consider as the most used ones, but you can of course play around with it. A good EA does not show big differences in performance after changing the settings.

Trailing Stop

This means that the Stop loss will jump to breakeven level after the price move reached your input. For example: If you select 50 points (=5 pips), then the SL will start trailing the market price after this price went 5 pips in your favor after entry. The SL will now follow the market price at a 5 pips distance.

Long/Short

In case you only want to use the EA in one direction, like to follow a trend, you can disable the other direction. For example, if a trend is going down, you can disable the long trades. Simply select “false” to disable the long trades.

Max One Trade

This is mostly used by manual traders that prefer to only enter the market once. After a trade the EA disables and should manually be enabled to use it for the next trade.

Magic number

Just leave this untouched.
